

Price of Galvanized Cable Tray Jumper

AI Overview

The price of standard galvanized cable tray bonding jumpers typically ranges from $5 to $15 per unit, depending on size, material, and purchase quantity. Pricing Overview Galvanized cable tray jumpers, also known as bonding jumpers, are essential for grounding and electrical safety in cable tray systems. Standard units in the USA generally cost between $5 and $15 each, with bulk purchases often reducing the per-unit price. Prices vary based on: Material and finish: Hot-dip galvanized or pre-galvanized steel, tinned copper braids, and malleable or ductile iron clamps can affect cost. Size and length: Common lengths range from 14 inches to 36 inches, with larger or custom sizes costing more. Design features: Enhanced durability, weather resistance, and compliance with UL, CSA, or NEC standards can increase price. Factors Affecting Cost Bulk Orders: Purchasing multiple units for large projects can significantly lower the per-unit cost. Compliance and Certification: Jumpers meeting UL 467, CSA C22.2, or Federal Specification W-F-406E standards may be priced higher due to quality assurance. Installation Type: Snap track or adjustable fittings may have slightly different pricing due to design complexity. Additional Considerations For industrial or commercial projects, selecting jumpers that meet corrosion resistance and grounding requirements is critical for safety and longevity. Some suppliers, like GangLong Fiberglass and TechLine Mfg, offer guidance on selecting jumpers that balance cost and performance. In summary, when budgeting for galvanized cable tray jumpers, expect $5-$15 per unit for standard sizes, with adjustments for bulk orders, material quality, and compliance certifications.
