

Single-mode multi-core optical cable supply price

AI Overview

Single-mode multi-core optical cables typically range from $0.10 to $6 per foot depending on fiber count, construction, and connectors. Pricing Overview The cost of single-mode multi-core fiber optic cables varies widely based on fiber strand count, cable construction, and connectorization. For bulk cable materials alone, prices generally range from $0.10 to $0.50 per foot for single-mode fiber, with higher strand counts increasing the cost proportionally. For example, a 12-strand cable may cost around $0.50 per foot, while a 24-strand cable can reach $1 per foot, and a 288-strand backbone cable may cost $6 per foot or more depending on specifications and quality. Factors Affecting Price Fiber Count: More cores increase material and manufacturing costs. Multi-core cables are available in 4, 6, 8, 12, 24, 48, 96, and up to 288 cores. Cable Construction: Options include OFNR, OFNP, LSZH, and armored variants. Armored or outdoor-rated cables are more expensive due to durability and environmental protection. Connectors: Pre-terminated cables with connectors like SC, LC, FC, ST, MTP/MPO, E2000 add to the cost. Factory-terminated patch cables are higher priced than bulk cable. Length: Longer cables increase total cost, though per-foot pricing may remain consistent. Custom lengths are available from 1 meter up to hundreds of meters. Installation Considerations: If including installation, labor, trenching, conduit, and testing, total project costs can rise significantly, sometimes adding $2–$6 per foot to the cable cost. Typical Use Cases Single-mode multi-core cables are ideal for long-distance, high-bandwidth applications such as campus backbones, metropolitan networks, and telecom infrastructure. They are preferred over multimode fiber for extended runs due to lower attenuation and higher transmission distances. Summary Low-core single-mode cables (4–12 cores): ~$0.1...
