AI Overview

Barbados is divided into 11 parishes, each with its own political boundaries, and further subdivided into smaller districts for administrative purposes. Parishes of Barbados Barbados is organized into 11 parishes, which serve as the primary political and administrative divisions of the island. These parishes are: Christ Church, Saint Andrew, Saint George, Saint James, Saint John, Saint Joseph, Saint Lucy, Saint Michael, Saint Peter, Saint Philip, and Saint Thomas. The capital city, Bridgetown, is located within Saint Michael Parish and functions as the main administrative, financial, and port center of the country. Historical Development Originally, in 1629, Barbados was divided into six parishes: Christ Church, Saint Michael, Saint James, Saint Thomas, Saint Peter, and Saint Lucy. By 1645, the island was reorganized into the current 11 parishes, a structure that has largely remained unchanged since then. These divisions were initially established for taxation and governance purposes during the colonial period. Districts Within Parishes Each parish is further divided into smaller districts, which serve administrative and local governance functions. There are approximately 30 districts across the island, each responsible for local services, infrastructure maintenance, and community representation. Parish councils historically played a key role in managing these districts, maintaining law and order, and providing public services. Governance and Administration The parish system hel...
